

TAKE A REST
(Stéphane LEBOURG)

I've been told you travelled the land
Up and down
I've been told you were shaking hands
All around
By word of mouth
North and south
You had a long run and believe you are the best
But the good times are gone now, and you need to take a rest
Take a rest now

I've been told that some people
Ask you for more
But I've been told about things you've done
During the war
By word of mouth
North and south
You won medals, and just keep them on your chest
For all the battles, you know what is best
Take a rest now

I've been told about what you call
Your organization
I've been told you had an idole
Other times, other nation
By word of mouth
North and south
You want to sell fantasy, I call it a nightmare
According to me, you'd better take care
Take a rest now

I've been told you promised
The great fight
I've been told you raised your fist
Against human rights
By word of mouth
North and south
After all these years, you've got a name
With such ideas, and you don't feel any shame
Take a rest now
